Dear valued customers and partners,

We are excited to announce that our Managing Director, Ina Sophia Schindler, has been voted as "Manager of the Year" by Markt & Technik for the second consecutive time. This prestigious award recognizes her exceptional leadership skills, outstanding contributions to the electronics industry, and commitment to promoting diversity and inclusion in highly technical industries.

Together with Markus Loeffl, our CTO, Ina has also successfully managed a generation change in a short time, building a young and powerful team that is dedicated to providing innovative solutions that meet the needs of our customers.

As a female leader, Ina has been a driving force behind our efforts to promote gender equality and diversity in the embedded community. She firmly believes that women should be seen and heard more in traditionally male-dominated fields, including electronics, construction, and agricultural machinery. With her unwavering dedication and leadership, she has helped pave the way for more women to enter management positions and be perceived on an equal footing.

Ina's achievement is a proof to her hard work, innovative thinking, and commitment to excellence. She has been with MicroSys since 2013 and has been in the embedded industry for a total of 16 years. Her international experience and exposure to different cultures have greatly benefited our company, and we are proud to have her as our Managing Director.

On behalf of the entire MicroSys team, we extend our heartfelt congratulations to Ina on this outstanding achievement. Her award is a proof of her exceptional leadership, and we are proud to have her and Markus leading our company.

Thank you for your continued support, and we look forward to continuing to provide you with innovative solutions that meet your needs.

Sincerely,

Richard Loeffl and Dieter Pfeifer
